Education and Training

What we offer

The Education and Training, Career Guidance & Entrepreneurship Cell of this company provides guidance and all the assistance for the students in order to achieve their career goals. The unit takes right steps in identifying the demands of the current industry and prepares our students towards this need. Adequate emphasis is given for soft skill development complementing the regular academic programmes.

To meet the rapid changes in technology our company conducts Value Added Courses which the students learn beyond their syllabus, for the students from 1st year onwards. The other unique feature of the training programme is the need analysis done among the students and based on their needs they are exposed to various training programmes. The effectiveness of the training programme is analysed by the feedback collected from each and every student.

How will you benefit

Participants attending any of our programs will benefit by saving significant time in creating various types of skills that requires the use of various features and functions in industries these days; learn to analyse problem more in-depth and identify patterns or trends emerging; master the various types of skills that can be used in industries; manipulate and present data to better serve your clients; understand techniques in making a presentation better by applying the "wow factor". The above mentioned would vary based on the program attended.

The Need of Training Programs

CH
CAREERHONE

The Need of Training Programs

Training programs are required to allow one to keep abreast with current work practices. Very often, what is learnt at educational establishments are highly academic and may not be applied in the "real world". To counter this, many companies require their new recruits to undergo an "orientation program" where new employees understand the working methodology and processes of the company with the right training. New employees are expected to fit-in immediately once they start their new job. Today, all new employees are expected to know how to handle the personal computers and its popular software. The technology that we have today allows almost everyone to have not one but numerous email addresses!

If one goes to any office, many employees are seen as working on their terminals but do we measure how effectively it is being used? Do employees know how to exploit the current technology to maximize productivity level? Do employees know the quickest or shortest way of accomplishing a task? Do employees actually know what they are performing or have they been told to follow a certain routine only?

Studies have shown that many know what the technology is all about but do not have sufficient knowledge or have attended proper formal training to exploit it. Too much time is spent trying to figure out how to work on a feature or function the "trial-and-error" way. This is where this proposal comes in to fill the gap here. Thus, the aim here is to equip everyone to be proficient with the relevant technology programs that can help one to increase their professional efficiency and productivity levels.

In today's world of rat race, employees are much like captains of seafaring vessels who have embarked on a deep perilous ocean journey. Guiding the organizational vessel toward its business goals requires skilled preparation. One can train the vessel's crew to raise and lower the sails. The safest journey will occur when the crew has learned how their actions affect the manoeuvrability of the vessel in rough seas, which is often unpredictable, and how to make the right decisions as individuals and as a team. The success of the vessel to reach its intended destination by and large will depend on this.

With the ever increasing competition from the borderless world of today, one has to be competitive and remain ahead. Decisions have to be made quickly and promptly. It should be a "national mission" of any country to equip its citizens with human capital development for it to sustain and grow its economic success without being overly dependent on others. The "push" has to come from one selves to be trained and developed for the challenging environment.

The type of instructional method, topic or content, format and delivery strategy for training and learning services provided helps an organization achieve its goals by increasing the knowledge level of its employees which ultimately increases efficiency at workplace. Very often, the preparation of a workforce for proficiency in specific job roles requires training. Training events deeply rooted in instruction and drill are very focused and specific, often are not transferable to other job activities. For many critical processes, good training is essential to performance.

With this in mind, CareerHone aims to cater for trainees at all levels wanting to enhance their technological skills to be better prepared for the work force with the proper "hands-on" training.

All of CareerHone courses are highly "hands-on" with emphasis on technological and management skills. Popular courses such as .net, Java, PHP, Database, Hardware & Networking, Testing, Personality Development Programs. Apart from this, our company provides an opportunity to the faculties to upgrade their teaching skills with the present scenario through faculty development programme in the regular interval. It inevitably helps the students to manage their position in regularly changing environment of IT industry.

Participants attending these programs are expected to perform an exercise based on what has been taught. Studies have shown that learning without any practical exercises or examples does not reinforce the learning curve. To counter this, participants are expected to perform analysis and exercises using the relevant applications using its various functions and features that is normally not taught in other programs. This is where the learning process takes place.

Armed with the knowledge and skills gained from our courses, participants can expect to tackle most of their technology related issues and problems with a higher level of confidence to take them to greater heights.

Projects & Internship

CareerHone has designed a program to offer project training solution to the college going students and final year students. The Live Project is an endeavor from CareerHone to create a simulated environment of an IT organization within the College Premises and at our center. Students gain exposure to the real time problem solving and solution development activities.

Project Delivery Process & Cycle

It's no secret that internships are one of the best ways to receive a full time job offer. Becoming a high performing intern is a fantastic way to improve your employment prospects, so many students consider the company as the most important criteria during their internship search. Internships can be a great way to get your foot in the door with a prestigious or desirable company.

Internships give you on-the-job experience. Since students typically have less experience than full time employees, interns are usually exposed to a wide variety of tasks and responsibilities. This allows the intern to showcase their strengths by working on projects. If an intern shows the manager or internship coordinator that they can be an asset in a specific role, on a particular team or within a department, then the intern has a higher probability of receiving a full time job offer. The student wanted to land a job at the company and showed they were willing to contribute to the company in any way possible.

In addition to providing meaningful, real-world work, the internship program is structured to give students the chance to network with corporate world through CareerHone internship program activities and events.
